Open Day

The Australian Centre for Child Protection is holding its first Open Day!

The Australian Centre for Child Protection invites students, practitioners and others who are interested or considering further study or research careers in child welfare to come tour the Centre and meet the researchers.

The open day is an opportunity to learn more about the work of the Centre in a formal Centre overview presented at 4.30pm. This will be followed by drinks and nibbles and the opportunity for informal discussion with members of the Centre's research team.

Researchers will be available to talk about their current research, research interests and possible research areas for those who might be interested in undertaking an honours or PhD project in the area of child protection either now or in the future.
