Your gateway to the world.

UniSA's Bachelor of Business (International Business, Finance and Trade) program opens up a world of exciting opportunities for graduates ready to meet the demands of modern business with a global perspective.

Specialist skills and knowledge learned in this program allow graduates to conduct business in an international environment. Graduates can look for work locally, around Australia and in many businesses who are trading internationally.

The strong set of business skills acquired through the program are essential for the global business environment and are transferable across a range of industry sectors.

Which Occupations?

Given the International Business, Finance and Trade program's focus on analytical, conceptual, and strategic decision-making skills within a global context, international business graduates have a range of employment opportunities and occupational areas to choose from.

Graduates of the program have been offered roles such as Private Banker and Relationship Manager (Finance) with ANZ and Trade Officer with SA Department of Trade and Economic.

Which Industries?

International Business graduates can find work in a vast range of industries. For Policy and Planning Managers in Australia, just over 66% will find employment in Public Administration and Safety, 7.5% in Financial and Insurance Services, 7.1% in Professional, Scientific and Technical Services, and 5.2% in the Information Media and Telecommunications industries. For importers, exporters and wholesalers in Australia, just over 80% will find employment in the Wholesale Trade,

Sarah Woods

Year Graduated: 2009 with Honours
Job Title: Analyst, International and G20 Division
Employer: Australian Treasury, Canberra

“Rather than seeking immediate employment after completing my double degree, I chose to pursue an Honours degree in my field of study. The Honours degree suggests to potential employers that the student is a hard worker and committed, as well as being a high achiever.

My tip for current students, don't expect to land your dream job as soon as you finish your degree - sometimes it will take years, further study and a number of different jobs before you are even close. Understanding and establishing a career pathway, however, is a great tool in helping you reach your career goal.”
