

The Shared Learning in Clinical Practice Initiative Presents

Risk Assessment and Risk Management Symposium 2012

This symposium is a free event which aims to enhance knowledge of the clinical practice implications of effective risk assessment and management in the areas of self harm, suicide and vulnerability. The symposium will consider these issues in the context of the challenges faced by clinicians in their daily work.

The symposium's target audience are those clinicians delivering front line mental health and drug and alcohol services. The symposium provides a unique opportunity for clinicians across Mental Health and Drug and Alcohol Services to come together as part a practice development process.

University of South Australia

The Symposium will be led by Professor Nicholas Procter (Chair Mental Health Nursing, UniSA) and Julie Murison (Clinical Practice Consultant, Adelaide Metro Mental Health Directorate). The symposium will feature a number of distinguished speakers, panel discussions, and practice development presentations.

Government of South Australia

SA Health

Thursday 22 March 2012
Bradley Forum, Hawke Building,
UniSA City West Campus, North Terrace, Adelaide

Places are Limited! To register your interest please send an email to:
mentalhealth@unisa.edu.au

The Shared Learning in Clinical Practice is a partnership UniSA Mental Health and Substance Use Research Group and SA Health's 'Acute Matters' initiative.